A CORRUPT JUDGE

P²asses Judgement as a Gamester does false Dice. The first Thing he takes is his Oath and his Comission, and afterwards the strongest Side and Bribes. He gives Judgment, as the Council at the Bar are said to give Advice, when they are paid for it. He wraps himself warm in Furs, that the cold Air may not strike his Conscience inward. He is never an upright Judge, but when he is weary of fitting, and stands for his Ease. All the Use he make of his Oath is to oppose it against his Prince, for whose Service he first took it, and to bind him with that, which he first pretended to bind himself with; as if the King by imparting a little of his Power to him gave him Title to all the rest, like those who holding a little Land in Capite render all the rest liable to the same Tenure. As for that which concerns the People, he takes his Liberty to do what he pleases ; this he maintains with Canting, of which himself being the only Judge, he can give it what arbitrary Interpretation he pleases ; yet is a great Enemy to arbitrary Power, because he would have no Body use it but himself. If he have Hope of Preferment he makes all the Law run on the King's Side ; if not, it always takes part againſt him ; for as he was bred to make any Thing right or wrong between Man and Man, ſo he can do between the King and his Subjects. He calls himſelf Capitalis, &c. which Word he never uſes but to Crimes of the higheſt Nature. He uſurps unfufferable Tyranny over Words ; for when he has enſlaved and debaſed them from their original Senſe, he makes them ſerve againſt themſelves to ſupport him, and their own Abufe. He is as ſtiff to Delinquents, and makes as harſh a Noiſe as a new Cart-wheel, until he is greaſed, and then he turns about as eaſily. He called all neceſſary and unavoidable Proceedings of State, without the punctual Formality of Law, arbitrary and illegal, but never conſiders, that his own Interpretation of Law are more arbitrary, and, when he pleaſes, illegal. He cannot be denied to be a very impartial Judge ; for right or wrong are all one to him. He takes Bribes, as pious Men give Alms, with ſo much Caution, that his right Hand never knows what his left receives./
